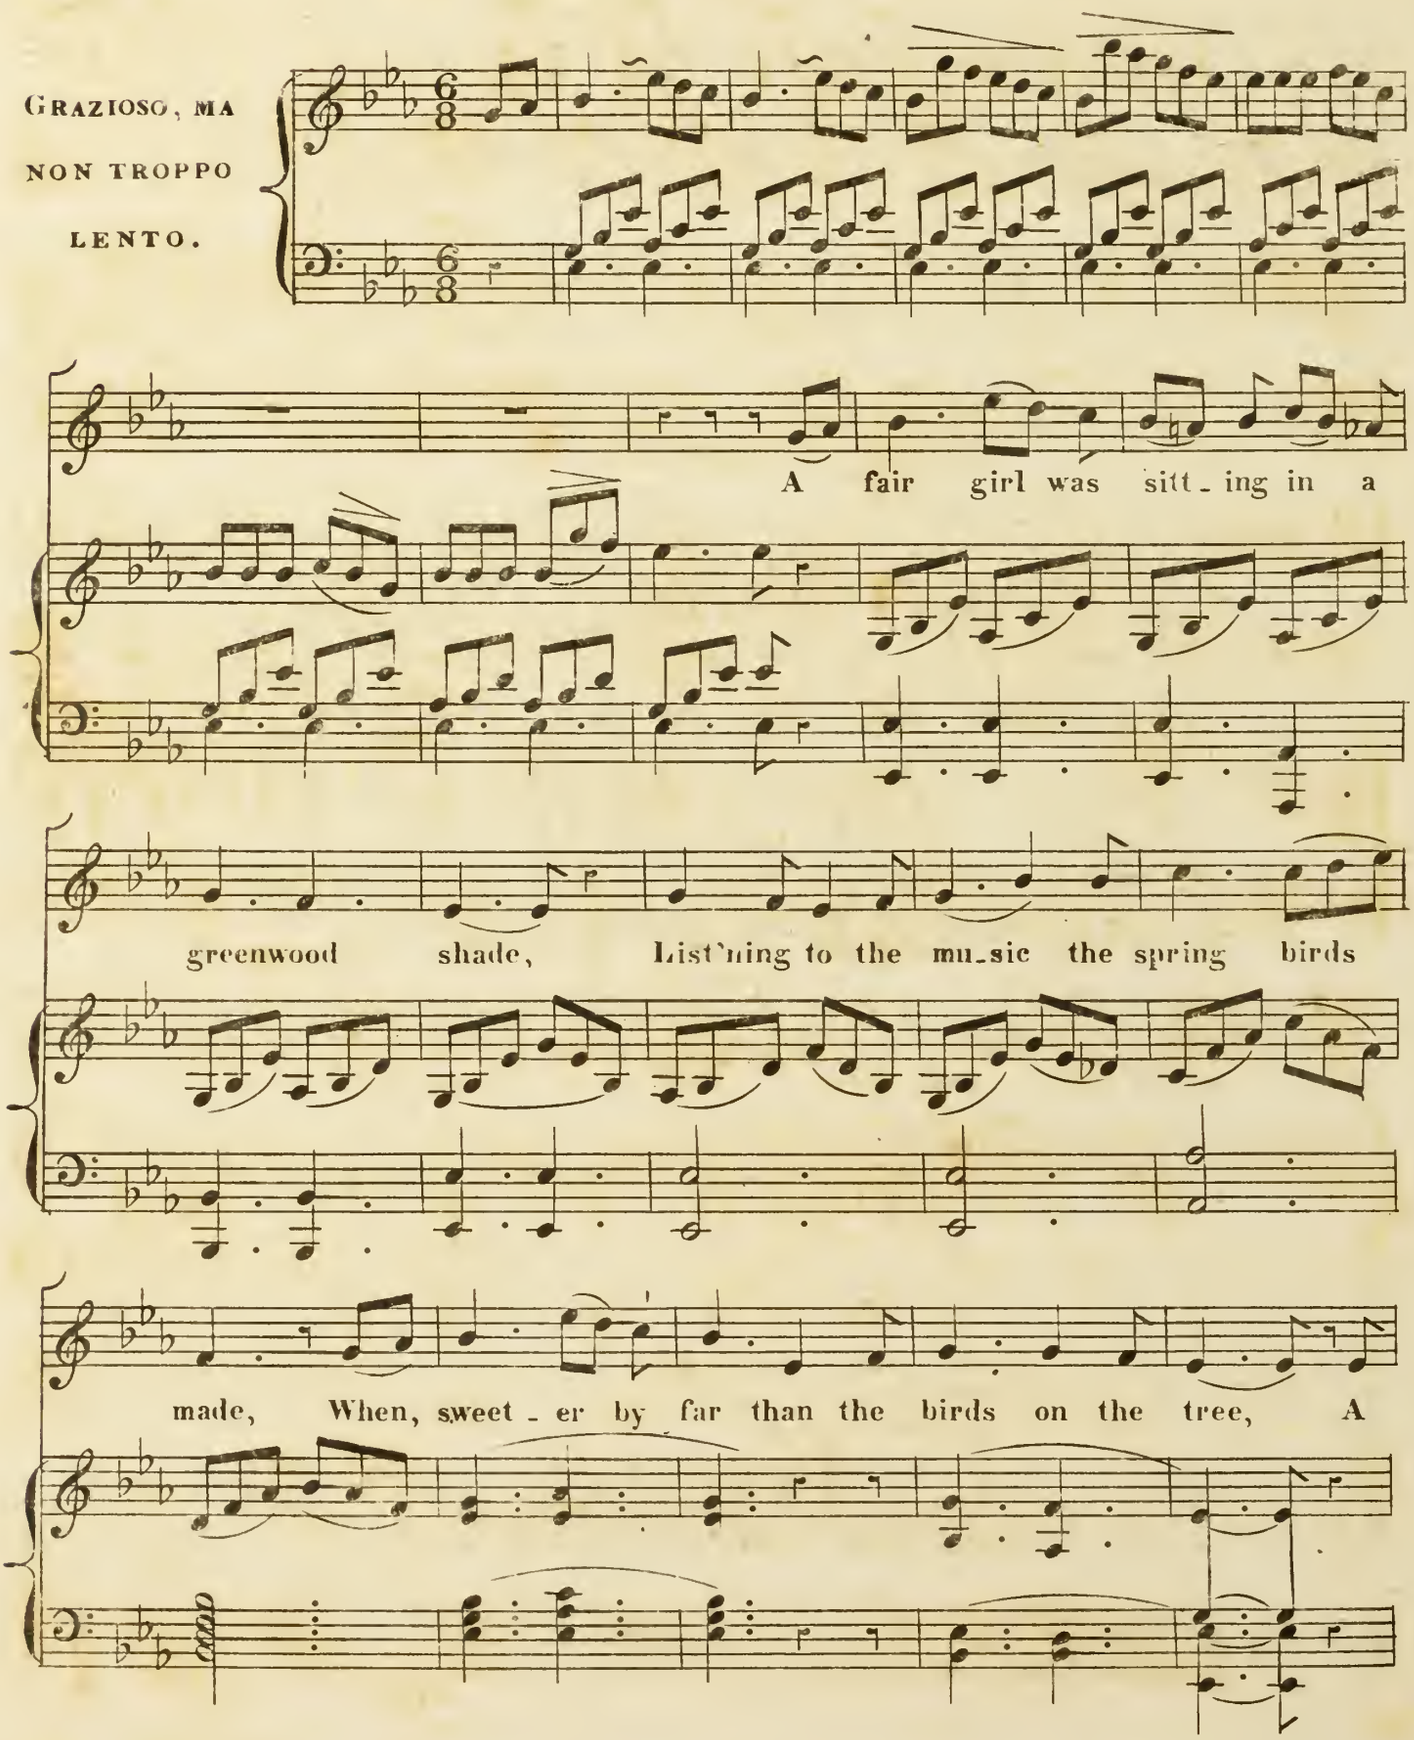
THE FAIRY TEMPTER.

(They say Mortals have sometimes been carried away to Fairy-land.)



GRAZIOSO, MA NON TROPPO LENTO.
A fair girl was sitt-ing in a greenwood shade, List'ning to the mu-sic the spring birds made, When, sweet-er by far than the birds on the tree, A cres.

voice murmur'd near her "Oh! come love with me" A voice murmur'd cres.
p near her "Oh come love with me" In Earth or Air, A thing so fair, I
dim:
have not seen as thee. Then come love, come love, come love with
cres.
me . . . . . come love, come love, Oh come love with me.

Gold, I will show thee the birth place, of Jew - els and Gold, And f pear - ly caves, Be - neath the waves, All these, all these are thine, If p espress.

thou wilt be mine love, If thou wilt be mine, If thou wilt be
mine love, If thou wilt be mine.

Thus whis-per'd a fai--ry to tempt a fair girl, But vain was his pro-mise of gold and of pearl; For she said "tho' thy gifts to a Espress.
Cres.
poor girl be dear" My Father, my Mother, my Sis--ters are here, My Fa--ther, my Mother, my Sis-ters are here; Oh!
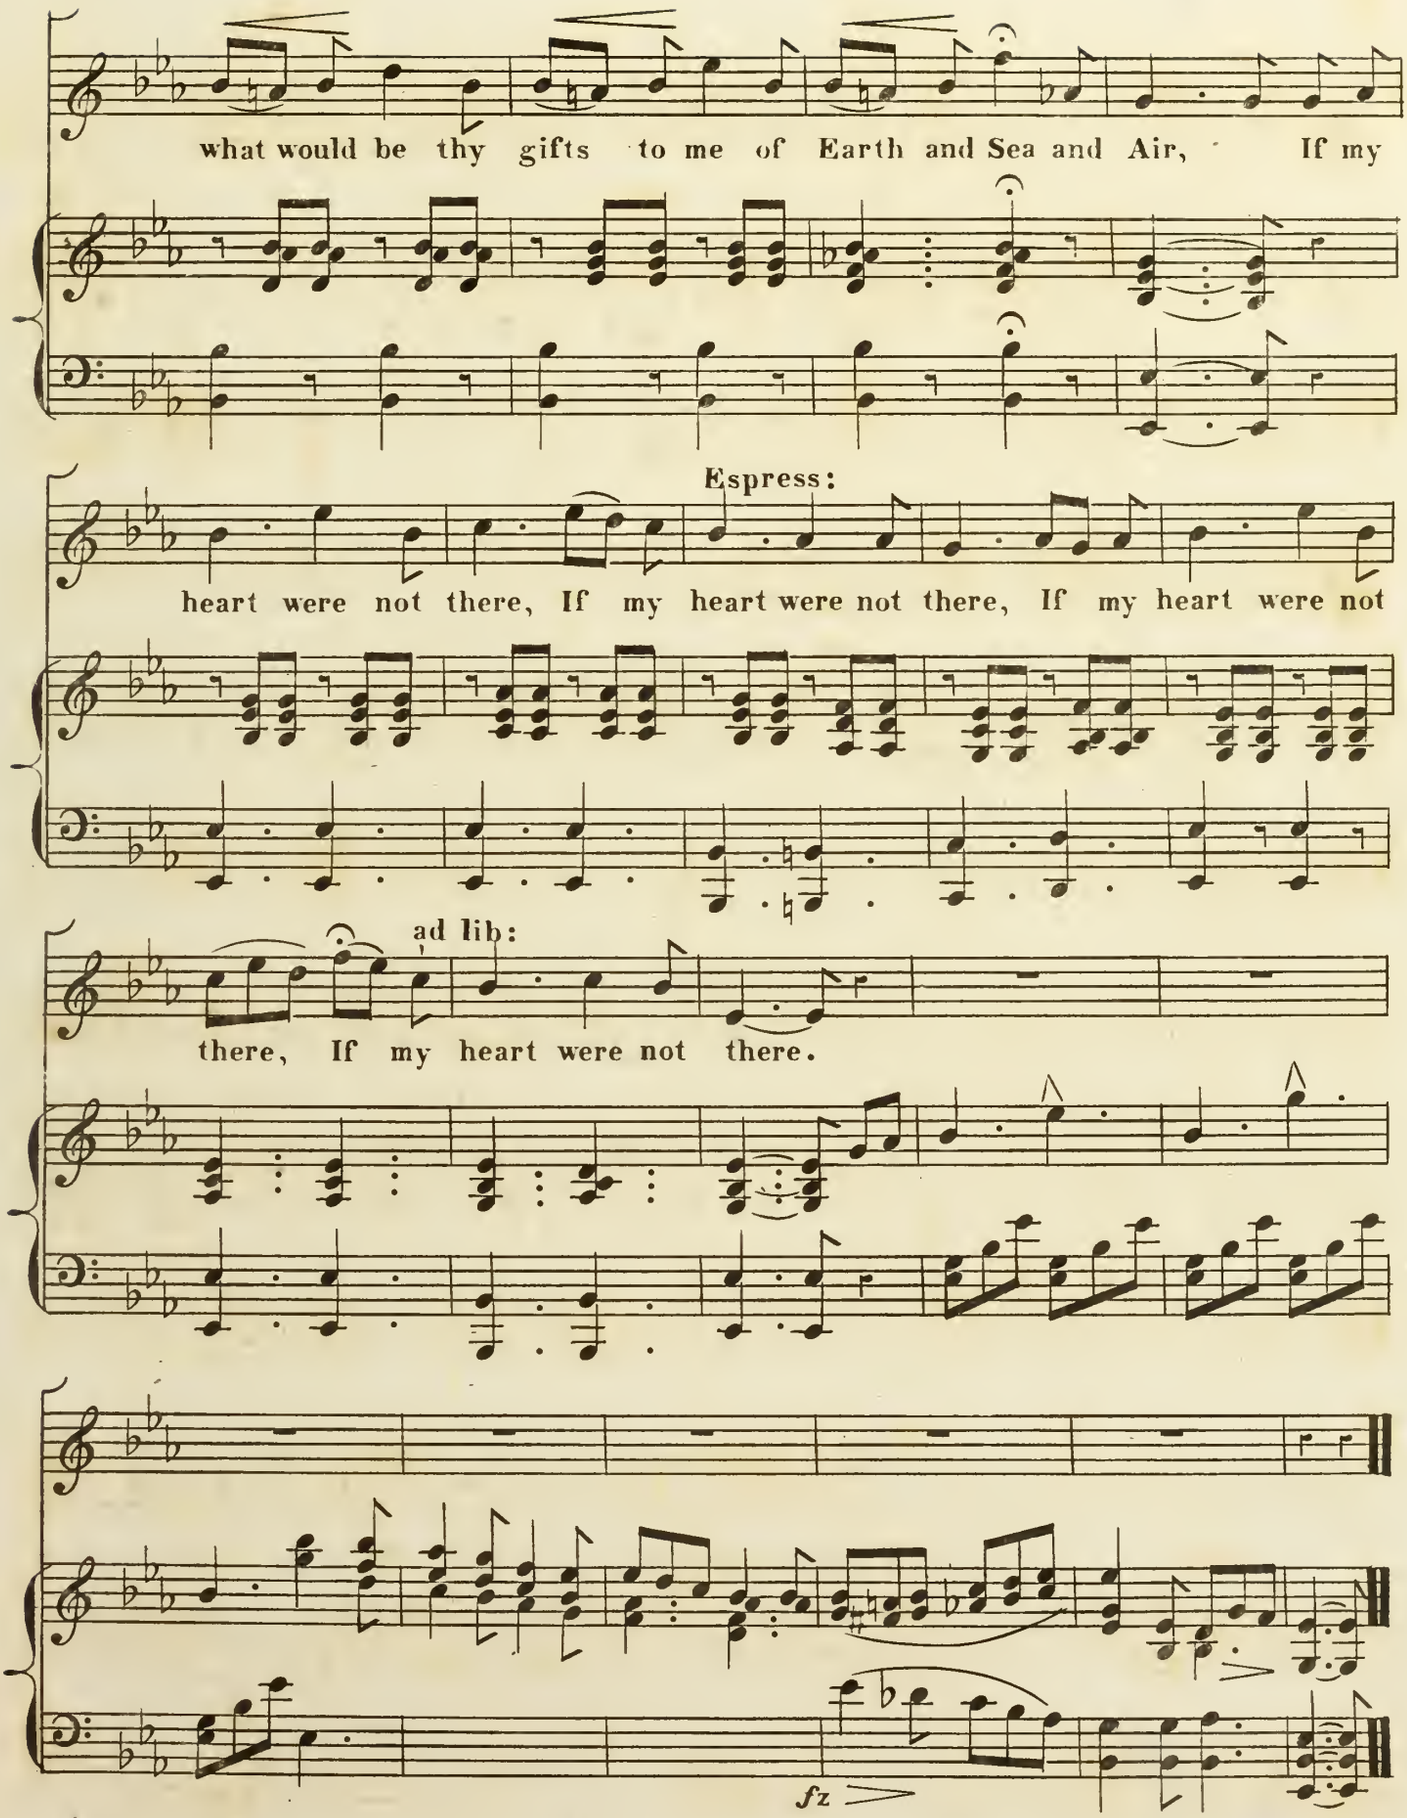
Dim:



what would be thy gifts to me of Earth and Sea and Air, If my Espress:
heart were not there, If my heart were not there, If my heart were not
ad lib:
there, If my heart were not there.
